STATEMENT OF INTENT:

This document sets out:

- how we will comply with the data protection principles to process special category personal data
- how we will handle special category data that we process, our lawful basis and purpose of processing and the relevant condition for processing under GDPR and data protection law
- it explains our policies for the retention and erasure of personal data processed under the relevant condition

This policy document will be retained, reviewed and (if appropriate) updated by the Data Protection Officer and (if requested) made available to the Information Commissioner, until six months after we cease carrying out the processing.

1. Special category data at a glance

Special category data is personal data which the General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) says is more sensitive, and so needs more protection. In order to lawfully process special category data, we must identify both a lawful basis under GDPR and a separate condition for processing special category data.

The special categories are personal data revealing racial or ethnic origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, or trade union membership, and the processing of genetic data, biometric data for the purpose of uniquely identifying a natural person, data concerning health or data concerning a natural person's sex life or sexual orientation.

The special category personal data that we may process are ethnic origin, biometrics (where used for ID purposes for door entry and cashless catering), health and school specific sensitive data which may include but not limited to SEN/AEN. Pupil Premium and child protection.

The provision of equality monitoring data such as race or ethnic origin and health (disability) is optional in some circumstances. We will tell you when this applies at the time we collect the information.

2. Principles

The General Data Protection Regulations (GDPR) has 6 principles that we must follow when collecting and using personal information and to comply we must take steps to make sure all personal information is:

- processed lawfully, fairly and in a transparent manner
- collected for specified, explicit and legitimate purposes
- adequate, relevant and limited to what is necessary
- accurate and up to date
- kept in a form which permits identification of data subjects for no longer than is necessary processed securely

3. What are the lawful bases for processing?

The lawful bases for processing are set out in Article 6 of the GDPR. At least one of these must apply whenever we process personal data:

- Consent: the individual has given clear consent for us to process their personal data for a specific purpose.
- Contract: the processing is necessary for a contract we have with the individual, or because they have asked us to take specific steps before entering into a contract.
- Legal obligation: the processing is necessary for us to comply with the law (not including contractual obligations).
- Vital interests: the processing is necessary to protect someone's life.
- Public task: the processing is necessary for us to perform a task in the public interest or for our official functions, and the task or function has a clear basis in law.
- Legitimate interests: the processing is necessary for our legitimate interests or the legitimate interests of a third party unless there is a good reason to protect the individual's personal data which overrides those legitimate interests. (This cannot apply if to a public authority processing data to perform official tasks.)

The special conditions under GDPR which allow processing of special category personal data are:

- Article 9(2) (a) – explicit consent has been given.
- Article 9(2) (b) – for employment, social security and social protection purposes.
- Article 9(2) (c) – for vital interests.
- Article 9(2) (d) – for legitimate activities by a foundation, association or any other not for profit body with political, philosophical or religious or trade union aim.
- Article 9(2) (e) – for employment, social security and social protection purposes.
- Article 9(2) (f) – for defence of legal claims.
- Article 9(2) (g) – for substantial public interest purposes.
- Article 9(2) (h) – for health and social care purposes.
- Article 9(2) (i) – for public health purposes.
- Article 9(2) (j) – for archiving, research and statistics purposes.
